The Polish Heritage Society was founded in 2010 with the following aims:

- To record for posterity and to promote the care of those memorials, monuments, buildings and other marks of remembrance testifying to the presence of Poles in the United Kingdom;
- To record and promote the contribution of Polish social organisations and individuals of Polish origin in the United Kingdom to its cultural heritage;
- To advocate, preserve and promote the strong historical relationship between the British and Polish nations through greater awareness amongst present and future generations of British citizens of the historical links between the two countries;
- To cooperate in a non-political, transparent manner with any groups, associations, societies and bodies, public and private, and with individuals in the common interest of maintaining and protecting our common Polish heritage in the United Kingdom.

Projects sponsored or planned by The Polish Heritage Society include:

- The creation of a monument to members of the Allied Polish Armed Forces at the National Memorial Arboretum in Alrewas, Staffordshire
- A bust of the Chopin at Trinity College, Greenwich and two additional 2011 projects in the UK
- Cleaning of 1000 Polish graves in UK cemeteries and lighting candles on them for All Saints Day in 2010
- The comprehensive restoration project of the 1975 Fryderyk Chopin statue at Southbank Centre
- A planned statue in London in memory of Jan Herman Zukertort, a world chess champion of the 19th century

The Society welcomes new members and all forms of financial support.
